

TILLMAN SPEAKS

In The Defense of Wil- liam E. Chandler

ON FLOOR OF THE NATIONAL SENATE

Also Makes A Statement In His Own Behalf

SAYS THAT NO CONFERENCE WITH PRES- IDENT WAS ASKED

Washington, May 16.—While the debate on the personnel of the interstate commerce commission was in progress in the Senate on Tuesday Senator Tillman took the floor to make a statement in behalf of former Senator Chandler, which has been momentarily expected since Senator Lodge's conveyance last Saturday to the Senate of the President's emphatic denial of the statements attributed to Mr. Chandler by the South Carolina senator.

Mr. Tillman read the portion of Mr. Chandler's memoranda of his conference with the President which has heretofore been given to the public, prefacing it with a brief statement of his own, saying that on Saturday the Senate had been startled and mortified to hear the utterances of an ex-member denounced on behalf of the President as "deliberate and unqualified falsehood." As he had been responsible for introducing the subject which had caused the attack on Mr. Chandler he felt under obligations to place him right on the record. To that end he read the former senator's statement.

The reading of the statement was followed by the following from Mr. Tillman:

"There are only two points in the President's letter which I deem worthy of notice. His attempted explanation is ingenious, but not ingenious. He calls in question the integrity of purpose and utterance of Mr. Chandler by declaring he was asked to see former Senator Chandler 'as representing Mr. Tillman, who was in charge of the bill. He stated to me the views of Mr. Tillman with seeming authority.'

"Mr. Chandler has declared most positively in a written statement that the President sent for him for the purpose of getting into communication with Senator Bailey and myself, and he has produced the letter of Mr. Loeb.

"I now declare most emphatically that to no human being have I ever given authority or expressed a wish to have any conference with Theodore Roosevelt in regard to the bill now under consideration. On the contrary, I have expressed the opinion in more than one published interview that he had nothing to do with it, and that it was the business of the Senate and while I did, at his request, enter into negotiations with the attorney general, it is well known to every senator on this floor what my attitude and feelings have been, and it is most remarkable, while the President sent for Democrat after Democrat to confer with him about this measure, that he should undertake to assert that I sent an agent to him to begin negotiations. The statement is absurd on its face.

"The other point to which I shall refer is the cavalier way in which Mr. Moody discusses the idea of the President not being bound.

"While contradicting in no instance, however slight, my statement of what occurred, the attorney general seems to think that the code of honor among gentlemen is not binding upon the executive and his cabinet.

"The President asked him to see Mr. Bailey and myself. We met by appointment made by Senator Chandler and talked over the vital ques-

The steam engineering boiler-makers are engaged in retubing the boiler of the construction and repair locomotive crane, which is temporarily out of commission.

REASON TO BE PROUD

Although Tuesday was the first time the Sagamore fire engine crew was ever called for an out of town alarm, even though the men did not leave the city, their quick work in making ready shows what the Creek fire fighters can do in a game of hustle. They have every reason to be proud of the record made on Tuesday.

IN PRISON CELLS

Gouin And John Doe Begin Life Sentences

TURNED OVER TO WARDEN SCOTT AT CONCORD

Mystery Of The Unknown Bandit Is Still Unsolved

EVIDENTLY A MAN OF NO LITTLE CULTURE AND REFINEMENT

Joseph Gouin and John Doe were turned over to Warden H. K. W. Scott of Concord state prison early on Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Marcus M. Collins.

Warden Scott was at work on the prison lawn when the famous prisoners arrived. He at once went to his office and received the men who have so long been in the public eye. The unknown, called by the authorities John Doe, will pass the remainder of his life within the gloomy walls of the state penal institution. When Gouin is released, he will be a middle aged man.

The mysterious bandit was silent and evidently unconcerned. He betrayed absolutely no emotion. Gouin plainly showed in his manner that the prison office was familiar to him. He had once before been received there, previous to the beginning of a short term for larceny. On that occasion he was sent up from Portsmouth under the name of Joseph Moulton.

Many curious people witnessed the arrival at Concord of the train from Portsmouth bringing the two bandits. With them was another less famous prisoner, Andrew J. Charland, who will serve three years for breaking and entering.

Three hacks were waiting to convey the officers and the men in their charge to the prison. Sheriff Collins occupied the first vehicle with Charland, who on Tuesday finished serving one state prison sentence. John Doe, guarded by three deputy sheriffs, was a passenger in the second hack. In the third was Gouin, also with three officers. The trip to the prison was made very quickly.

The unknown preserved his reticence regarding his identity to the end. Warden Scott had no opportunity to talk with him Tuesday night, but it is not likely that the man would have told his real name had the warden cross-examined him.

Various names have been applied to the man. He has been called Dick Spring, Toronto Goldie, Hogan and the New Haven Beut, but probably none of these titles belong to him.

He appears to be a young man of considerable refinement, showing good breeding in many ways. He is believed to be not more than twenty-three years old, but the Rockingham county officials say that he is the nerviest crook they ever had under their charge. His conversations indicate that he has traveled all over the United States and Canada and has once or twice visited Europe. He is particularly familiar with the western sections of this country and the western Canadian provinces.

When he can be induced to talk, he is a really charming conversationalist and at such times it is hard to associate him with crime. He has an almost cultured literary taste and at different times during his confinement in Portsmouth jail displayed an astonishing knowledge of current and standard literature. He read much during the weeks of waiting and borrowed many books from the officials, always asking for those of high character. Those who became best acquainted with him are confident that he has known something better than the life of a yeggman.

With all his refinements, there is no doubt that he is a man of desperate character. When he was brought from his cell to the office of Portsmouth jail Tuesday morning, to prepare for the trip to Exeter, he gave indisputable evidence that he would seize any opportunity to escape. He backed into a corner and furtively surveyed the sheriff and his deputies, as if picking out a man to attack. After a few moments, he threw back his head, as if saying, "You are too many for me," and submitted passively when the irons were placed on his wrists and ankles.

The county officials are relieved that the two men, particularly Doe, have been safely lodged in prison. They have been constantly on their guard for more than three months and the strain has been a severe one. It is now up to the prison authorities and it is very unlikely that they will ever be forced to resist an attack by the yeggmen friends of the two bandits.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS

City Has Had Present Fire Alarm System

HAS BEEN MUCH EXTENDED SINCE ORIGINAL INTRODUCTION

The Gamewell fire alarm system was introduced twenty-one years ago into the city of Portsmouth—in May 1885—at a cost of $2860.

Six and three-quarters miles of wire were originally used, upon which there were eleven signal boxes, one automatic bell striker, one indicator, one gong and two mechanical tappers, charged with twenty-four cups of batteries.

Since 1885 the extension of the system has been gradual and important.

From the original eleven boxes in May, 1885, there are now thirty-eight boxes.

The "no school" signal was adopted in 1886.

FIVE MEN ARRESTED

On Suspicion Of Card Playing Early Last Evening

City Marshal Entwistle and Police Officers West and Kelly raided the store of W. C. Tuttle on Daniel street early last evening on suspicion that a card game was going on.

Five men were placed under arrest and later allowed to go on their own recognizance to appear in police court this morning.

BOOK OF COMMON WORSHIP

Just Issued By Authority Of Presbyterian General Assembly

The Book of Common Worship has just been published with the authority of the Presbyterian general assembly. For three years a special commission on forms and services of the general assembly, headed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, has been working on this new prayer book. The approval of the general assembly to the innovation was not secured without a struggle, as many Presbyterians objected to any "form" in the church.

It is expected by the Presbyterian leaders that some churches will refrain from using the new book, but in the East, and in the large cities of the country generally, it is expected that it will be largely adopted.

In many particulars the Book of Common Worship has points of similarity to the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer. The marriage ceremony in the new book omits the word "obey" to which so many have objected, and it also omits the reference to "worldly goods" with which the man and the woman in some marriage forms "endowed" each other.

It is noted that, although the book was of course planned long before the San Francisco calamity, one of the prayers it contains is especially applicable to that disaster and shows how carefully the book has been planned to meet unusual circumstances. The prayer reads:

"Almighty God, who art a very present help in time of trouble, let not the heart of thy people fail when they cometh but do thou sustain and comfort them until these calamities shall be ever past; and since thou knowest the cause and reason why this grievous disaster of earthquake and fire hath fallen upon men, so do thou heal the hurt and wounded, console the bereaved and afflicted, protect the innocent and helpless and deliver any who are still in peril, for thy great mercy's sake. Amen."

LOCAL DASHES

Damon Lodge, No. 9, Knights of Pythias, met last evening and had degree work and a banquet.

Advertising does not create value. But advertising creates demand, and if the value is there, creates confidence.

The present city council has held but one special meeting, but it has held more than enough extra regular ones to make up for it.

Beginning next Friday the almanacs have "unusually cool weather for points north of the fortieth parallel" predicted.

Wharfage privileges are no longer at a premium along the greater part of the city's water front, but this is due rather to the decline of the fishing trade and the increased tonnage of vessels in the merchant marine than to actual business decrease.

JEWELERS LOSE VAST SUMS

Women of Fashion in London Order Gems and Husband's Refuse to Pay.

"Milliners and costumers, though a favorite mark for the dishonest woman of fashion, are by no means the only sufferers," said a West End jeweler yesterday. "I use the term 'dishonest' advisedly, for it is surely nothing short of dishonesty for a woman to order things in the hope that her husband will settle the bill, though she has been warned not to incur the expense. We jewelers, on quite a modest computation, must lose between $250,000 a year in London alone in unpaid bills."

"One woman this winter, after ordering bangles, rings and a jeweled muff chain to the value of over $400, told us to send the bill to her husband. He wrote telling us he had forbidden his wife to pledge his credit nearly a year ago, and formally declined to settle the bill. We have not been able to get either our money or our goods."

A Bond street jeweler said: "I have thousands of dollars' worth of book debts which I will sell you for a cent on the dollar."

"There is nothing to prevent a married woman from ordering an article worth $2,500 and never paying a penny. We cannot get the jewelry returned either. On the whole, I have come to the conclusion that the woman of society is not so honest as we would wish her to be."

DAMASCUS THE UNTOUCHED

The Oriental City Called by Arabs a "Pearl Encircled by Emeralds."

Most travelers, I think, will award to Damascus in Syria the palm of being one of the most "untouched" of oriental cities, writes William G. Fitzgerald, in Four-Track News, a lovely ancient snow-white garden, surrounded by forests of pomegranates and other orchards such as caused the Arabs, a thousand years ago, to speak of it as a "pearl encircled by emeralds." Time has stood still in Damascus for a thousand years and life goes on in the country outside its walls precisely as it did when the ancient Bible historian spoke of the city in the Book of Genesis. For there, plowing is done with a crooked bow drawn by a ragged camel, or by the Arab farmer's wife in double harness with a donkey. There, too, and likewise within the walls, one sees the long lines of indolent eastern women drawing water from the well, just as Rachel did; or women sitting before the doors of their houses grinding corn in the old Bible way, with upper and nether stones.

THE ENGLISH POLICEMAN.

He Is Always Neat and Quiet and Deferential Towards the Public.

Of all departments of the city (Manchester, England) the one, next to the tramways, of which a stranger sees the most is the police. And in the conduct of the police department, writes Samuel Merwin, in Success Magazine, we find a striking comparison with our American notion of police work. In Manchester, as in London, the policeman is always the servant of the public. As in London, he carries neither club nor revolver. His duties are very nearly the same as those of a New York officer: it is in his method of doing his work that the striking difference lies. He is always quiet, always neat, always respectful, even deferential, in his treatment of the public. Such overbearing manners as we sometimes see in New York policemen would not be tolerated in Manchester—or in London, for that matter. Graft in the police department is almost unheard of. The laws on this subject sprang out of a lively public spirit and are meant to be enforced.

APACHES NEVER SCALPED.

Contrary to General Report These Indians Never Took Victim's Hair.

The taking of scalps has been spoken of so commonly in the press of the United States that it has become a general practice when speaking of a man having lost his life among the Indians, to say: "He lost his scalp." Novelists even of to-day, when locating their stories in Apacheland, almost invariably scalp the victims of almost vengeance. As a matter of fact, writes E. S. Curtis, in Scribner's one can say that the Apache never took scalps. Men who have lived in the Apache country and have been closely associated with them for 30 years or more, claim that no full-blooded Apache ever scalped a man he killed. On the contrary, he would not touch a body after death, and would throw away his weapons if stained with human blood. Their own dead men never help to bury. This task is left to the women.

Sartorial Perspicacity.

"I should like," the man cautiously explained to his tailor, "to have a little pocket, a very, very small pocket, one you could hardly see, you know, put somewhere, say in the hem of my trousers, or in the waistband, oh, where it couldn't be so easily found. You understand?" "I see," said the tailor. "You are married now."—N. Y. Sun.

Just a Family Jar.

He (angrily)—So there was a man after you when you married me, was there? She—Yes; there was. "Poor fool! I wish to heavens you had married him."

"I did."—Boston Transcript.

BAD TRICK OF GOOD TRADE.

Lawyers Point Out Evils of Practice in Personal Injury Litigation.

"The most serious evil of modern practice," This is the significant verdict pronounced upon the present abuse of personal injury litigation.

The words are used, not by the employers who suffer through this abuse, but by the Green Bag, a magazine published by and for lawyers themselves. Practically the entire current number is devoted to this one subject.

One of the writers, in discussing the notorious runners, tells of a case in which the day after a street car collision 34 suits were brought from one office in favor of passengers. Drug stores and barrooms are subsidized; it is carefully noised abroad that so and so is good for $25 dollars if a safe case is sent him.

A case in most of our large cities must wait at least two years before it reaches a jury. The cost of a trial is large, and since this must come out of the lawyer's pocket, unless a verdict is won, he makes the cases that he wins pay for those that he loses.

Even a handsome verdict is pared down by counsel's and doctor's commissions, and the cost of trial to such an extent that a plaintiff would generally fare better if he had taken the bedside settlement offered by the claim agent of the insurance company. Many an uninsured employer would pay comparatively liberally if he did not know that his money, instead of going to his injured workman, must pass across the itching palm of counsel.

GIRL BASEBALL PLAYER.

Champion of Her Sex Who Has a Great Record as a Thrower.

Four years ago Miss Marion Reynolds was the champion female ball player of Maine, if not of the United States. She was born on a farm, says Modern Women, and was one of a large family, mostly boys, all of whom were noted local baseball players.

As she grew to maturity her services were frequently required to make up the regular number for a team, and in this way she got such practice that she equalled any of them on the team.

A claim was made by the friends of a young lady in a New York college as the champion because of her throwing a ball 181 feet. But at Belfast, Me., Miss Reynolds threw the regulation ball, notwithstanding a strong wind was blowing, a distance of 182½ feet.

The measurement was made by the managers and several doubters. After the exhibition they tried her as a catcher, pitcher and batter, and she could outplay them all.

Miss Reynolds is of medium height and graceful form. Her manners are pleasing and unassuming. She dresses with taste. She has played ball in many cities, but has retired from the game and is now teaching school.

NEW YORK SAMARITANS.

Incident of the Fallen Horse, the Calm Driver and the Willing Helpers.

It has been said of New Yorkers, and the saying is supported by a series of traditions, that if the wind blow off a man's hat in New York at least 50 persons will run to pick it up, anxious to recover it, brush it and run a block to return it to the owner.

Yesterday a horse drawing a heavily loaded wagon on the Bowery slipped and fell. Before the animal got through kicking and struggling it was tangled in the harness from bridge to breeching.

The driver looked tired and seemed to enjoy his cigarette and the respite from work. In a minute horse and wagon were surrounded by a crowd.

Twenty or more men got busy and pretty soon the horse was on its feet, the harness adjusted and the crowd scattered. The driver didn't move an inch from the time the horse fell until he clucked to the horse to resume the trip. He didn't even smile. He took it as a matter of course.

CALIFORNIA TOMATO PLANTS

Three Months After Planting the Vines Climb to a Height of Twenty Feet.

The largest tomato plants in the world are found in California. One grower has three plants which have reached a length of 30 feet.

In three months from the time the seeds were planted, says What to Eat, they had climbed to the top of a 20-foot trellis. When they reached this remarkable height they grew backward until they attained a length of 30 feet.

They have no special care or cultivation, and have had no protection from the weather; yet in spite of every disadvantage they kept on growing and fruiting in the most astonishing fashion.

The trunks are one and a half inches in diameter, the foliage thick and luxuriant. Enormous quantities of tomatoes have been picked from these three plants, and the fruit is of unusual size, possessing fine flavor.

CAPTURING WOLF COUNTIES

Methods Employed by Michigan Hunters to Obtain the Animal's Pelt.

The method by which a Michigan county wolf hunter secured $34 in bounty was to bury a quantity of meat in the snow of the early winter, and above the meat to place traps, which were also covered by snow in the regular course of precipitation.

In due time, says the Detroit News, the meat ripened sufficiently to give hints of its whereabouts, and was then sought by the wolves, which, dragging downward, sprung the traps and—the bounty. (One, more cunning than his fellows, avoided the trap by tunnelling under it and securing the bait without exchanging his hide for it.)

The method of catching wolves by trapping is a fair one, but what shall be said of the L'Anse man who, capturing a female wolf, taught her to become a decoy for the gallants of her tribe? With a long chain about her neck made fast at one end, she was allowed a wide range of captivity. She sang for company, and when admirers appeared flirted desperately with them.

The wolf slayer took position outside of his cabin door, in his jaws the stem of a cob pipe, across his knees a long range rifle. A sneaking gray fox from the woods, a coquettish salutation from the captive the crack of a rifle and the whistle of a bullet, forged each a link in the chain of tragedy that placed $175 in the purse of the cabinier as the profits of a few weeks. The gay decoy who stood for this treachery was a fast friend to her captor, and seemed to enjoy the havoc wrought on the chivalry of her race.

THE CALIFORNIA PATIO.

Enclosed Court of the Mexican Style of Dwelling Is a "Snug Harbor."

The patio is of several kinds as seen in America. One is completely surrounded by the house, as the splendid patio of the Hotel Coronado, at Coronado Beach, Cal., probably one of the largest in the world, where a great variety of palms and tropical plants are seen. Then there is the half patio, says American Homes and Gardens, where the house is built around a court on three sides, the rear side being left open. Again the patio may be a court open on two sides, several of which have been seen in Pasadena. In one the patio was an after consideration, and has been extended to the south, the north and east walls of the house forming the closed portion, while the others were constructed of Moorish arches. The pavement of this patio is tiling; a low rail runs around it, and there is a small fountain in the center and a garden all around it, in which are placed plants noted for their beauty and climbing habits; one a bougainvillea that covers the east wall with a blaze of color, so that in looking through the Moresque corridor from without they are outlined against this color scene. Splendid roses trail over the top of the patio or its sides, the top being left open. In this snug harbor the owner sits every day in winter embowered literally among choice flowers, a fan lawn reaching away on every side from the mission house, forming the frame of the picture.

HIS OFFICIAL OPINION.

The Captain Thought the Soup Was Good Enough for Tea or Coffee.

Rear Admiral Longacker, who recently retired, was talking one day at League island navy yard about discontent among soldiers and sailors, relates the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Men are often discontented without reason," he said, "but oftener they have good ground for their grumbling, and it is because their officers are stupid or lazy that conditions do not improve."

"I remember once visiting a pompous, handsome, stupid army officer."

"During my visit a private approached the officer with a full cup and saucer in his hand."

"Well, Binks, my man?" said the officer in a condescending tone.

"Captain," said the private, saluting, "I'll ask ye to taste this here. I won't make no complaint. I'll just ask ye to taste this slop, and if ye don't say, by—"

"That will do, Binks," the captain interrupted, in his dignified way, for Binks was getting angry, and he took the cup from the man, bent forward stiffly and swallowed a couple of mouthfuls of the liquid.

"Then he looked at the private, calmly."

"This is not bad," he said, "I can't taste anything wrong with this. Binks, by the way, what is it? Tea or coffee?"

Sacredness of the Mantilla.

Many attempts are being made in London and in Paris, says a London report, to adapt the Spanish mantilla to our use. To the Spanish women the mantilla stands for all that is national and characteristic, and so to maintain a part of herself is the mantilla deemed that it is even held sacred by law, and cannot be seized for debt.

FARMINGTON TODAY Meets Locals In Interscholastic League Game At The Plains

This afternoon the P. H. S. baseball team meets Farmington, at The Plains, and a good game of ball is expected. Farmington and Portsmouth are tied for third place and this will probably add a further incentive to both nines to play fast ball.

The article of ball put up by the Portsmouth lads is first class and what they have done this year is a thing to be proud of. Sanborn Seminary, which defeated Lawrence High school, was easily beaten. Dover, with Varney pitching, was whipped on her home grounds, and narrowly escaped a shut-out. Here, too, she would have been whipped, but for a slump in the batting, which even the best teams suffer.

Rochester, with "Wild Bill" Going, the foxy left hander, and the best pitcher in the league, in the box, was trimmed handsly and would have met the same fate at Rochester but for the umpire. Twice in the seventh P. H. S. would have scored the run which meant victory, but for this arbitrary monarch of the diamond.

As for the defeat at Farmington, the crowd which stoned the Rochester football team last year had not forgotten its old tricks, and the umpiring was worse than poor.

Taken on the whole, the P. H. S. baseball team has accomplished wonders. A practically new team, with only four veteran players, it has defeated the best school teams of the state.

Over Half a Million SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

Do you think such an enormous business could be built up and continually increased, if our goods did not have exceptional value and merit? Do you think we could hold the trade of half a million people, if our reputation for doing exactly what we say wasn't firmly established? Do you think U. S. Senators, Foreign Ambassadors, Bankers, Business and Professional men in every section of this country would keep on using HAYNER WHISKEY if it wasn't all right? Do you think doctors would recommend it and hospitals use it, if it wasn't absolutely pure and unadulterated? Just think these things over carefully and then send us a trial order. Your money back if you are not satisfied.

THE PRESIDENT AND MR. CHANDLER

New Hampshire people may believe that either President Roosevelt or Mr. Chandler is guilty of wilful misrepresentation. They have too high a regard for both men to entertain such a thought. They regret that the present controversy has arisen, but are confident that the difficulty will be straightened out and that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Chandler will again be good friends.

Of course, both the President and Mr. Chandler believe that the other is in the wrong. Neither is inclined to mince his words when called upon to speak. In a few weeks or a few months both will regret what has happened, realizing that the merits of the controversy are of less importance than good feeling between two such able servants of the people.

It is to be hoped that an understanding will be reached very speedily and that a reconciliation will follow at once.

THE BEST NAVY YARD

That was a pleasing admission made last week on the floor of the national House of Representatives by Representative Mudd of Maryland. Pleasing, we mean, to friends of the Portsmouth navy; the supporters of the other yards could not be expected to receive it with gratification.

Pressed by Mr. McNary of Minnesota, Mr. Mudd reluctantly acknowledged that the navy yard here is almost the only one up to which a disabled battleship could be brought without the aid of a floating dry dock. Mr. Mudd disliked to make this acknowledgement, but he made it when he saw that there was no escape.

If what Mr. Mudd says is true, and we all know that it is, why not send the great ships of the navy here for repairs? Why flood the other yards with work, while the Portsmouth yard suffers? Is it fair to discriminate against a yard admitted to be nearly or quite the best in the country?

These are questions to which friends of the Portsmouth yard are eagerly awaiting answers. There is, happily, good reason to believe that within a year or two, emphatic official recognition will be given our navy yard and that it will actually be made the greatest of all the navy stations owned by the United States.

BIRDS' EYE VIEWS

"A crust of bread is all I want," The beggar humbly muttered; "A crust of bread is all I want," These touching words he uttered. But we no sooner gave it him Than he asked to have it buttered!

An advertisement says: "How to Remember—Stop Forgetting." There is the problem and the solution at one whack.

Joseph Medill Patterson, millionaire and Socialist, is heartily applauded by the crowds when he speaks against the wealth of the Armours. We have not heard of his giving up any of his own, however,—not even to endow a free library to perpetuate his name.

Alfred Henry Lewis in Human Life makes a distinction between taxpayers and tax eaters. We all help to eat the taxes; the real distinction is between taxpayers and tax gourmands.

The rescue of the occupant of a disabled power launch off this coast Sunday by the men of the Jerry's Point crew illustrates another of the increasing and multifarious duties of Uncle Sam's surfmen.

If a clerk stole forty dollars to try his "luck" in the bucket shop, there would be no doubt of criminal intent, such, for instance, as would exist if he stole one hundred thousand dollars for the same purpose.

A man who lately died in Berne, Switzerland, was known as "the most miserable miser in Europe," and left behind him a fortune of fifty thousand dollars. How much he took with him can only be guessed at.

Another man has discovered a way to make artificial pearls that can't be told from the real product of the oyster. Somehow or other we don't expect any drop in price to take place as a result of the discovery.

Now the Boers want woman's suffrage. Why didn't they institute it when they held the reins of government? "Vae victis" would be a pretty good rule to try on these people for a while to come, and would no doubt make less impudent citizens of them in days to follow.

A short time ago some of the editorial writers were saying good-bye to Chinatown. How did they suppose San Francisco's Chinese colony was to be disposed of? Perhaps they thought it would be "amalgamated," an easy word in the mouths of "universal race" maniacs.

The negro Bishop Turner who denounced the flag of the United States as a despicable rag ought to be remembered on Memorial day by the thousands of veterans who wasted whatever proportion of their time was spent in freeing him from the bonds of slavery. Free speech is carried too far when a man, black, yellow, red, brown or white, is allowed to abuse with impunity the flag of his country while living under its protection.

Livingston Wright eulogizes Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson in the May number of Human Life. Mr. Wright makes a great point of using the words "blue bloods" and "rabble," as if he were writing about France at the time of the taking of the Bastille, and he applies them to the people of Boston, in an apparent effort to glorify the "rabble." Milder terms would have been better to employ for argumentative effect, for there was certainly little "aristocracy" or "rabble" in Boston at the outbreak of the war. The people were all plain Americans, each man and woman having a constitutional right to his or her opinions, though it is said to have been occasionally denied them.

OUR EXCHANGES

The New Democracy

I'm with the people—I'm with every man
Who tills the soil, and sows the potent seed,
And gathers harvests for the common good;
Who wields the ax not for himself alone;
Or if for self, yet harms not any man;
Who turns the wheels of industry around
With foot, or hand, or with the active brain,
Supplying every need for every man—
Were but supplies with love distributed
And with a sense of common brotherhood.

I am with those who dream the pregnant dream
Of happy workers in a happy state:
Who dream the dream of true Democracy;
Who damn this state which makes for joyless life
Through cruellest curse of mad monopoly.

I'm for the workers of the present state,
Who love to serve, and serve because they love;
Who count the sense of service to the whole
A greater recompense than Greed to-day
Counts all its golden millions ("for the good,"
It likes to say, "they render to the world").

I'm for the joyous workers yet to be:
They who today consider work a curse;
They who today are cursed with overwork;
They who today do starve for lack of work;
They who today live but from others' work—
I'm for the joyous workers yet to be.
—Rose H. Phelps Stokes, in Everybody's Magazine for May.

23 For The Clean-Shaven

To shave or not to shave, that is the mighty question now agitating the students in the Harvard university graduate and professional schools. The Gibson type of the clean shaven man is disappearing and mustache faces are again plentiful. But, after all the jokes that may be made on the subject, isn't personal appearance an important matter? —Waterville Sentinel.

"Ay, Tear Her Tattered Ensign Down"

People along the Kennebec river entertain the hope that the season's business of the Eastern Steamship company will be good enough to warrant the purchase of a new flag for the steamer Damaris. The flag which it floats at present is so faded, stained and tattered that many people believe that it is the original American flag made by Betsey Ross in 1777.—Kennebec Journal.

It Should Be Done

The House Committee on Census has passed a resolution providing for the publication of the names of heads of families returned at the First Census of the United States in 1790. These returns were never printed, and some of the schedules were destroyed by fire when the British occupied the city of Washington in 1814. Most of the schedules are still in existence, and contain much information of value to students and genealogists. The publication will permanently preserve for the use of the general public the important facts contained only in these old papers now yellow with age and gradually becoming illegible from being handled. It is a work that certainly should be done and at an early day. —Somersworth Free Press.

Courtesy in Concord

A "tired to death" little woman, with two small children more tired than their mother, arrived at the Eagle hotel last Sunday on the last stage of their journey from far-off Idaho. Next morning, as the mother, refreshed and encouraged, paid her bill, she said: "Do you know that from the time I left my home in Idaho until I reached Concord yesterday not one act of courtesy had been shown me? I was beginning to think

THE THEATRICAL FOLK

Keith's Theatre

Another prominent feature from the "legitimate" stage has been secured for vaudeville purposes in "The Broomstick Witches," which will head the bill at Keith's for the week of May 21. As often happens, the condensation of the act has improved it wonderfully, so that it is now considered to be one of the best "girl" acts that has come into the varieties this season. The eight "witches" are under the direction of Delight Barch, a pretty and dainty miss, who is a descendant of one of the Salem witches herself. The girls alternate as rickshaw boys, witches and show girls, are prettily costumed and know how to dance their way to favor. The big novelty of the bill will be Luigi Rossi and his musical horse, "Emir," a marvelously intelligent equine, who accompanies his trainer while he plays on several different instruments. Prominent on the surrounding program will be the Bedouin Arabs, eight wonderful posturers, acrobats and tumblers; Raymond and Caverly, German comedians and parody singers; Gertrude Mansfield and Caryl Wilbur, in their mirth-provoking comedy sketch, "61 Prospect St"; Delmore sisters, talented vocalists and instrumentalists; Charlie Case, "the fellow who talks about father"; Bessie and Miller, in a comedy singing and dancing specialty; Arthur and Mildred Boyland, in a pretty little playlet, entitled "Jack and Jill"; Waldorf and Monden, comedy acrobats; Salmon and Chester, coster comedians, and the Barretts, skilful jugglers. In the kinetograph the customary list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited.

The Last Week

The last weeks of "A Society Circus" at the New York Hippodrome are announced by Thompson and Dundy. Never before in the history of theatricals has such a successful season been recorded as that which has favored the big playhouse since its re-opening last September. "A Society Circus" alone, since its initial performance in December, has been played almost three hundred times before approximately 800,000 persons, which for any other theatre in New York would mean playing to capacity every night for from two to five years. So colossal the scale of magnificence which marks the production; its beauty and grandeur, that it is practically self-advertising. One visit means two. The program includes the greatest arenaic tournament ever arranged, including as it does the world's champions seen for the first time in America. Then, there are the gorgeous ballet; the plunging horses; the great chorus and the beautiful tableau, the Court of the Golden Fountains—features impossible of duplication. Matinees are given daily.

A NEW ORDER

Issued To The Engineers And Conductors
OF BOSTON AND MAINE REGARDING PUBLIC BARS

The engineers and conductors of the Boston and Maine railroad have been notified that hereafter the rule is to be strictly enforced that they must be total abstinence men, at least so far as drinking at public bars is concerned.

A large number of photographs of the engineers and conductors who, it is claimed, have violated the rule of drinking at public bars, have been taken and are now at the railroad headquarters in Boston. These men have been warned that they must comply strictly with the rule or be discharged.

One man who has been in the service of the corporation for many years has been discharged for his failure to comply with the rule, and there is a feeling among many of the railroad men that he should be reinstated, as he has done, it is claimed, no more than many of the other men.

The men take the warning in a good natured way and recognize that it is for the good of the service, but there are many men in the service, however, who feel that the rule is too severe, in denying the men the use of liquor in a limited way while they are off duty.

It is not generally known to the outside public that the several brotherhoods of railroad men, in their constitutions, discourage the use of intoxicating liquor in every possible way. There are no more earnest advocates of temperance in the use of liquor than many of the railroad men of this locality.

BOX 8 SOUNDED

For $20,000 Fire In Town Of North Berwick

BUT PORTSMOUTH HELP PROVED UNNECESSARY

And Local Fire Department Was Not Sent To The Scene

THE LITTLE MAINE VILLAGE WAS THREATENED WITH DESTRUCTION

Box 8 was sounded at about half past two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, calling out the local fire department to be ready to assist in subduing a fire that threatened to destroy the town of North Berwick.

After a part of the apparatus had been placed on a car, however, word was received that the fire was under control.

The telegraphic dispatch tells the story of the fire as follows:

A big fire was raging here at one o'clock this afternoon. At that hour just as telephonic communication was cut off by the fire, a hotel and seven dwelling houses had burned and a church was in flames.

A high wind was blowing, and it was doubtful how extensive the damage would be before the flames could be controlled.

The hotel burned was the North Berwick Hotel, M. S. Hurd, proprietor, and the church was the Baptist. The fire started in a barn near the station of the eastern and western division of the Boston and Maine railroad, which cross here, and burned in a northeasterly direction away from the station. The hotel was situated on the northeasterly side of Main street, and the Baptist Church was on Church street, near Main. The houses burned were between the hotel and churches. These buildings were in the good part of the town, which includes the best business section.

Among the more important buildings in the fire zone are the North Berwick National Bank, situated opposite the hotel in the triangle formed by Main and Market streets in a wooden block, and the Exchange block, a brick structure between the hotel and church, in which were lo-

These were in serious danger at 1.45 p. m. The fire did not burn nearer than 100 yards to the railroad station. All except one of the wires of the Western Union pass the station at this point, but it was stated they would not be damaged unless there was a change of wind. A fire engine arrived from Dover at 2.15 p. m.

The fire was under control at 2.30 o'clock. The estimated loss is $20,000.

The hotel was partially destroyed the Baptist Church, livery stable of F. O. Johnson, two large store-houses and blacksmith shop, a double tenement and a small tenement were totally destroyed.

AT HOME OF BROTHER

Miss Rose Powell Was Married to George Murray

Miss Rose Powell and George Murray, both of this city, were married on Tuesday evening at the residence of the bride's brother, Harry Powell, on Islington street. Rev. Henry E. Hovey performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white muslin, with a veil caught with white pinks, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Ella Morrill was bridesmaid. Her dress was of white lawn, trimmed with pink and her bouquet was composed of pink roses.

Samuel Powell was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony and there was a collation of ices, cake and fruit.

The bride tossed her bouquet among the guests and it was caught by Harry Powell, her brother.

WOMAN'S CLUBS

Annual Meeting of the State Federation in Plymouth

At Plymouth on Tuesday, the annual meeting of the New Hampshire Federation of Woman's Clubs was formally opened.

A reception was held in the parlors of the Pemigewasset House. Mrs. Mary I. Wood of this city being a member of the receiving committee.

The delegates from the Grafton Club are Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Amon O. Benfield, Mrs. Harriet Potter and Mrs. Sullivan.

MAN NOT LOGICAL MACHINE

Even the Greatest Debaters Are Often Illogical in Presenting Arguments.

The writers of formal logics seem to have assumed that man is a logical machine, that he weighs evidence, formulates it into syllogistic order, and then reaches the conclusions on which he bases his actions. The more modern conception of man is that he is a creature who rarely reasons at all, says Walter Dill Scott, in Talent. Indeed, one of the greatest students of the human mind assures us that most persons never perform an act of reasoning at all, but that all their actions are the results of imitation, habit, suggestion or some related form of thinking which is distinctly below that which could be called reasoning. Our most important actions are performed and our most sacred conceptions are reached by means of the merest suggestion. Great commanders of men are not those who are best skilled in reasoning with their subordinates. The greatest inquirers of men are not those who are most logical in presenting their truths to the multitude. Even our greatest debaters are not those who are most logical in presenting the arguments in favor of their side of the question. In moving and inspiring men suggestion is to be considered as in every way the equal of logical reasoning, and as such is to be made the object of consideration for every man who is interested in moving his fellows.

When Mr. Tillman had concided Senator Allison asked to have read the President's letter to him. He only said that his object was to have the letter made as permanent of record as Mr. Tillman's statement. Attorney-General Moody's statement to the President also was read. When the words "I saw the newspaper men in mass" were read there was a loud guffaw in the Senate and in the galleries, and the vice president rapped sharply with his gavel to restore order.

Mr. Nelson interposed with a motion to lay the pending amendment to the rate bill on the table, which closed the incident.

MERE MATTER OF SPELLING

Son of Ham Had an Easy Way of Surmounting Orthographical Difficulty.

A busy man hastened into one of the quick-lunch "cafes" that are popular in a portion of the city, and, after smiling at the peroxide blonde whose duty it is to ring up fares on the cash register, called to the colored waiter:

"Bring me a sandwich and a glass of milk, and be quick about it."

The son of Ham bolted away and quickly returned with the desired food and drink.

"Give me my check, quick. I am in a hurry."

The waiter pulled out a pad of paper and a pencil and began to scrawl several weird hieroglyphics on the paper. In response to the sharp "Come, hurry up," the waiter made a final desperate attempt and handed the man a check on which was written "One piece pie, one milk."

"Here," said the guest, as he deciphered the characters on the slip of paper, "I didn't order any pie."

"I know dat, boss," responded the abashed waiter, "but pie and a sandwich costs jes' de same, and I can't spell sandwich." And the blonde cashier smiled sweetly as she invited the man to call again.

LETTER FROM GOVERNOR

Received By The Portsmouth High School Mandolin Club

The Portsmouth High School Mandolin Club held its weekly rehearsal at the home of Instructor Walter Hoyt on Tuesday evening.

The boys have been putting in some hard work lately in preparation for their invitation concert and dance in Rye Town Hall on May 29 and on Tuesday evening the selections went off with great enthusiasm and vim.

The club has been organized but a brief period, but during that period it has been remarkable successful. Concerts have been given at all the leading churches and during April, a joint concert with the High School Glee Club was given, which completely filled the large Assembly Hall in the High School building.

The last appearance of the club was perhaps the most important; for it was at the Y. M. C. A. convention that the organization had the honor of playing before Gov. McLane. The members were introduced to the Governor and he expressed his appreciation of their work. The following letter since received from the Governor explains itself:

State of New Hampshire
Concord,
Council Chamber

F. Gooding, Esq.,
Leader of Mandolin Club,
Portsmouth, N. H.

My Dear Mr. Gooding:—

Permit me to express my appreciation of the excellent music furnished by your Mandolin Club at the Y. M. C. A. convention last Friday night. The young men are certainly deserving of great praise. I know that your interest and efforts were highly appreciated by all at that meeting.

Believe me to be,
Very truly yours,
(Signed) JOHN McLANE,
Governor.

May 14, 1906.

This was read at the rehearsal on Tuesday evening and the members certainly feel that it was most courteous of Mr. McLane to spare the time to write the words which are so pleasing to them.

Mr. Hoyt gave the club a delicious treat of ice cream and cake.

TILLMAN SPEAKS.

tion. He wrote and sent to Mr. Bailey his understanding of our views, and when we met subsequently, we reached absolute agreements both as to the form and the substance of a proposed amendment to which he said the President would assent and help get votes for.

"Of course, the President was not bound not to change, but he was bound under such circumstances to give notice, and this was not done. Even the attorney general himself was not notified. The charge I made, and still make, is that the President is guilty of bad faith and that the rate bill will be, when enacted into law, a much better and stronger measure than we had hoped to get if emasculated of one of its most valuable and essential features by the President's action."

"I am ready to leave the whole question to the thoughtful and honorable men of the country."

When Mr. Tillman had concided Senator Allison asked to have read the President's letter to him. He only said that his object was to have the letter made as permanent of record as Mr. Tillman's statement. Attorney-General Moody's statement to the President also was read. When the words "I saw the newspaper men in mass" were read there was a loud guffaw in the Senate and in the galleries, and the vice president rapped sharply with his gavel to restore order.

Mr. Nelson interposed with a motion to lay the pending amendment to the rate bill on the table, which closed the incident.

SAHARA A SEA OF LIGHT.

Not the Dull Sandy Waste That It Is So Commonly Supposed to Be.

A molten sea of dazzling, vibrating light seems the desert of Sahara near midday. The Sahara is not at all as popular belief pictures it—a vast plain of moving sand dotted here and there with fertile oases. From Tunis in North Africa westward it is a vast depression of sand and clay not much above sea level, in some parts perfectly level, in others hilly, with low depressions containing water saltier than the sea. This generally evaporates, leaving a coating of brilliant crystals which look like snow in the distance. The river from the Aures mountains serves to irrigate the oases of the Ziban; sometimes they flow above the surface, but more often below it. Now and then the mirage appears, refreshing the weary eyes of the stranger with visions of beautiful lakes near the horizon, even sometimes of moving caravans and trees. Alas! This is an instance where seeing is not believing. After many disappointments the camels suddenly raise their heads and sniff the air and move at quicker pace, instinct telling them that water is near. There is a fascination about desert life that is understood only after one has spent several weeks with a caravan among the Arabs. While the heat is great it is perfectly dry, and therefore does not enervate as does a humid atmosphere 40 degrees lower in temperature.

"THE QUEEN OF SICILY."

City of Syracuse Beyond Compare Among the Hellenic Communities.

William Sharp writes in "The Garden of the Sun" in Century: Syracuse calls itself the capital of the south, but it has no cause to dispute pride of place with Palermo. The metropolitan city is superior in population, wealth and much else, but it is deficient in what its ancient and glorious rival has in such abundance. For Syracuse has the supreme charm of Greece in a way that no other city except Athens has. Not even in Corinth, nowhere in Hellas from Messana or Sparta in the south to Thebes in the north, is there any Hellenic town to compare with "the Queen of Sicily." As a sanctuary, Delphi is far more impressive than anything in Sicily, as a national meeting place Olympia has no rival; but nowhere except at Athens is a Greek city to be seen to-day which has the proud record of the marvelous metropolis of the Sicilian Greeks, a city as great in power and wealth and beauty as Athens herself, and victor at last in the long and fatal rivalry which indirectly involved the passing of the Hellenistic dominion of all the lands washed by the Ionian and Mediterranean seas.

CARE OF THE HUNTING DOG

Must Be Well Nourished, But Meat Must Be Withheld While in the Field.

Much meat is to the sporting dog's nose what strong drink is to the detective's eye—poison, says Country Life in America. The beginner in the field often does not realize this, and nightly attributes his indifferent luck of the day to a scarcity of birds, when generous portions of beef or pot liquor are to blame.

Of course, when there is hard work to be done a dog must be well nourished, and its vitality kept up by giving it light morsels at frequent intervals, just as the man with the gun has to be sustained by good wholesome food. Two biscuits and water in the morning, a half biscuit several times a day, and at night a hearty meal of well-cooked vegetables or oatmeal porridge form the best fare for a dog in the field. Remember, however, to give the portions of biscuits when water is near by, since dry crumbs create a thirst that frequently handicaps a dog as much as hunger.

No Holiday.

People have different ideas as to what constitutes a holiday—or a vacation. Mrs. Pettis had her own firmly fixed opinions on the subject.

"I don't count Thanksgiving or Christmas or Washington's birthday or any of those holidays," she said, frankly, to an old friend one day. "What I count a holiday is when Ezra and Jim and Bob and Liphlet go off up to the wood-lot with their dinner, and I know they won't be back till night."

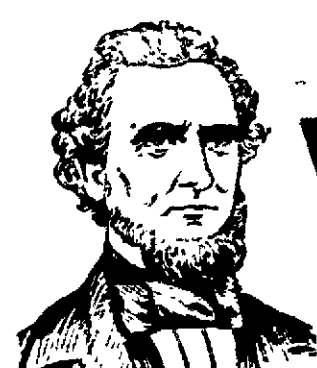

"I'm not one to deny that men-folks have their good points, but how any woman can call it a holiday when they're in the house, calling for food by looks when they aren't by words, is beyond me!"—Youth's Companion.

American Orchestras.

Felix Weingartner, the noted composer-conductor, in commenting on American orchestras, attributes their great success to the fact that they are cosmopolitan in personnel, whereas European orchestras, excepting possibly those in England, are largely national. He thinks French players the most skillful in the wood-wind, the Germans in the brass. The American orchestra conductors seek the best players available without regard to nationality.

Dream Came True.

Says a recent news item in an English newspaper: "A Mrs. Howling, of Penze, dreamed that she saw her little girl washed up on Hastings beach and the body taken away on a tarpaulin. Two days later the child was knocked down by a pantochoon and its wheels passed over her. Bystanders brought a tarpaulin, upon which the child was taken to the Beckenham cottage hospital."

UNSUSPECTED WORMS

are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When they are sick you rarely think their sickness is caused by worms. They are rarely treated for worms. Yet worms are the cause either directly or indirectly of over 75 per cent of the ailments of children. They are also the quiet cause of the troubles in adults. The familiar symptoms of worms are disturbed health, deranged stomach, turned tongue, variable appetite and itching of nostrils, under eyes, malaria, irritability, disturbed sleep, grinding of teeth, slow fever and often in children, convulsions.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

is the only safe, sure, entirely vegetable worm remedy ever compounded. It not only expels worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure and the whole system strong and healthy. Known and used successfully for three generations. This testimonial came with an order for more Elixir.

Dr. J. F. True, Auburn, Me.: My youngest son shows symptoms of having worms, and I know that your worm medicine will give prompt relief. My oldest son now a sea captain, who, when a boy, sickly and in need of health, we gave him your Elixir and he grew and thrived on it. We believe it saved his life. Mrs. JOHN COOKSUS.

Through Strong Drink.

Liquor drinking is one of the results of European penetration of Morocco.

The taste for strong drink, though still indulged comparatively in secret, is steadily increasing, the practice spreading from force of example among the Moors themselves, as a result of the strenuous efforts of foreigners to inculcate this vice. As yet it is chiefly among the higher and lower classes that the victims are found, the former indulging in the privacy of their own homes, and the latter at the low drinking dens kept by the seum of foreign settlers in the open ports.

Disappearing Turtles.

In the row of smaller tanks enclosing the great central pool on the floor of the aquarium there is one with a label that reads "Soft Shell Turtles," says the New York Sun.

And the turtles are there in the tank, sure enough, though there are times at this season when you would look in vain to see them.

At such times the turtles are buried in the sand. Many turtles of various kinds bury themselves in the mud in winter.

If the water in the tank gets chilly the soft shell turtles bury themselves in the sand on the bottom for their greater comfort; and when the water warms up they may come out again. You might see one just emerged, with its broad, flat back still covered with sand, like a turtle with a gravel roof.

Or you might see sticking up out of the expanse of the sandy bottom of the tank an old-shaped head looking almost snake-like. This is the head of one of the buried turtles, which it had thrust up above the sand in order to breathe.

And then again you might not see any turtles in the tank; but they are there, nevertheless, strictly in accordance with the label.

Through Strong Drink.

Liquor drinking is one of the results of European penetration of Morocco.

The taste for strong drink, though still indulged comparatively in secret, is steadily increasing, the practice spreading from force of example among the Moors themselves, as a result of the strenuous efforts of foreigners to inculcate this vice. As yet it is chiefly among the higher and lower classes that the victims are found, the former indulging in the privacy of their own homes, and the latter at the low drinking dens kept by the seum of foreign settlers in the open ports.

Only the Poor Escape.

"Why do you imagine that he is poor, because he doesn't dress better?"

"No, not that; but there has as yet been no talk of investigating him."

Disappearing Turtles.

In the row of smaller tanks enclosing the great central pool on the floor of the aquarium there is one with a label that reads "Soft Shell Turtles," says the New York Sun.

And the turtles are there in the tank, sure enough, though there are times at this season when you would look in vain to see them.

At such times the turtles are buried in the sand. Many turtles of various kinds bury themselves in the mud in winter.

If the water in the tank gets chilly the soft shell turtles bury themselves in the sand on the bottom for their greater comfort; and when the water warms up they may come out again. You might see one just emerged, with its broad, flat back still covered with sand, like a turtle with a gravel roof.

Or you might see sticking up out of the expanse of the sandy bottom of the tank an old-shaped head looking almost snake-like. This is the head of one of the buried turtles, which it had thrust up above the sand in order to breathe.

And then again you might not see any turtles in the tank; but they are there, nevertheless, strictly in accordance with the label.

ITALY'S KING GOOD SHOT.

Quick and Accurate Firing Characterizes His Forays in Game Preserves.

During his sojourn in Caserta King Victor Emmanuel has spent most of his time shooting in the magnificent preserves of Licola and Astroni, killing every time more than 100 head of big game, he being a very quick and good shot, firing immediately after putting the gun to his shoulder without waiting to take aim, writes a Rome correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette. Queen Elena, who claims to be a better shot than her husband, has given up shooting since the birth of the little crown prince, but all the same she has always assisted at these expeditions from a box especially built for her in the middle of one of the largest trees. Both king and queen are very affable with the beaters, with whom they often enter into conversation, inquiring about their condition and needs. In one of the last shoots, which had been very fatiguing on account of the bad weather, and in which the beaters were tired and covered with mud and soaked with rain, the king ordered them to be given double pay, and invited each to take one animal killed by him. The duke of Aosta, who lives now in Naples, is just the opposite of the king, disliking shooting to such an extent that for years he has not fired a shot.

ENGLISH LACK CURIOSITY.

An Instance Which Illustrates Its Entire Absence in Some Britons.

"While going through an English cathedral," said a returned visitor the other day, says a New York Times writer, "we noticed that all the tombs except one had inscriptions explaining them. Being curious to know whose tomb it was that did not bear an inscription I walked down to an iron railing, the gate of which was in charge of an old man. We had entered this gate to view the tombs, paying the customary sixpence admission. Pointing to the tomb, which was less than 75 feet from the gate at which the old man was stationed, I said to him: 'Beg pardon, but whose tomb is that one there? It has no card on it, and I'm curious to know its history.' 'Looking up toward where I was pointing and peering through the rather dim atmosphere of the church the old man in the most pathetic tone imaginable replied: 'I don't know, sir; I've never been up that far.' 'Supposing that he was a new-comer, I said: 'How long have you been here?' 'Slowly but proudly came the reply: 'Twenty-seven years.'"

Cigarettes and Other Smokes.

In smoking a cigarette we are partly inhaling about ten grains of tobacco, which as a rule is milder and freer from adulteration than any other form of smoking tobacco. One pound of tobacco will furnish filler for about 416 cigarettes, and one pound of cigarette paper will serve to envelop 12,000 cigarettes. One cigarette consists of one twenty-sixth of an ounce of tobacco wrapped in about one hundred and fifty-sixth of an ounce of rice paper. Ten cigarettes about equal one full-sized cigar. An ordinary pipe holds tobacco equal to the amount required to make five cigarettes.

NANCE O'NEILL COMING

The Great Actress Will Appear In This City Soon

Portsmouth's theatrical season will end with the appearance of Miss Nance O'Neill, the great American tragedienne. This is an announcement of the utmost importance from a dramatic point of view.
Miss O'Neill will come to this city from the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, where she is now playing an engagement to packed houses. The famous actress twice appeared at Music Hall last season and on both occasions scored tremendous hits. Her return will be an event of the first importance.
Those who saw Miss O'Neill last season in "Magda" and "The Jewess" will not soon forget her powerful acting. With the exception of Edith Wynne Matheson, who played here in "Everyman", no actress has in recent years made so great an impression in this city. She will certainly be enthusiastically welcomed.

LOST TO PORTSMOUTH

The Rhode Island Goes To Newport
News; Georgia To Boston
The battleship Rhode Island has been ordered to Newport News to go into the dry dock.
The new battleship Georgia, for four years expected to be the first of the greater ships of the navy to go into commission here, has been sent to Boston.
It is high time that Portsmouth was given an opportunity to test its new dry dock with a battleship. If the failure to complete the work at Henderson's Point is responsible for the failure to send a big ship here, then measures should be taken to hurry the work. If the dry dock still awaits the finishing touches, those touches should be given it.
With an immense dry dock, the greatest depth of water of any navy yard in the world and facilities for doing every sort of work, the Portsmouth yard should be rushed with work all the time.
The Portsmouth yard asks for nothing but its rightful share. It is willing to wait for the full recognition which its superlative merits will eventually demand with an insistence which cannot be denied.

HERALD WAS RIGHT

Told In Advance Of Action In The Bandit Case

Although no information could be obtained on Tuesday at the jail and newspaper men were as far as possible sidetracked, The Herald published a complete story of the arraignment of Joseph Gouin and John Doe at Exeter. More than this, it gave full details of the secret trip to Exeter and of the arrangements for the conveying of the prisoners to Concord.
The Herald readers will remember, too, that they were told nearly a week ago exactly what disposition would be made of the bandits. One or two out of town papers asserted that The Herald's prediction had no foundation in fact, but the event proved that this paper knew. Every detail of the arraignment was accurately sketched days in advance in these columns.

LOST $400

Frank H. Ellis Suffered From North
Berwick Fire

Frank H. Ellis of York Beach, in this city today (Wednesday), reported a $400 loss by fire at North Berwick on Tuesday.
Mr. Ellis had been engaged in moving several buildings in the unfortunate town and the apparatus with which he worked was totally consumed. One of the large barns which was destroyed had been moved to the site on which it was burned but a few days previous to the fire.
The final act of the drama which began with the Rockingham Junction tragedy was almost as thrilling as the first.

PERSONALS

Charles Towle is enjoying a week in the mountains.

OBSEQUIES

The funeral of Joseph Newell Philbrick was held at two o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon from his late home in Rye. Rev. C. O. Farnham of the Advent Church in this city officiated. Interment was in Central cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker H. W. Nickerson.
The body of Henry Emery, who died recently at the Cottage Hospital, was buried today (Wednesday) in North cemetery by Undertaker O. W. Ham.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION IN SESSION

At half-past nine this (Wednesday) morning, the thirty-first annual meeting of the Rockingham County Sunday School Association was opened in the Congregational Church at Salem Center. There was a large attendance and interesting programs for the day were announced.

REV. FR. REILLEY BETTER

News has been received in Newmarket by relatives of Rev. Thomas F. Reilley, who is still in Italy, that he is somewhat better. Fr. Reilley was taken ill in a mountain town in the south of Italy. Bishop Delany has cabled a priest of the diocese now in Rome to join Fr. Reilley and bring him home as soon as his condition permits.

NOTHING AT ALL DOING
The Street Sprinkler Will Be

PROMISES WILL HAVE NO EFFECT,
SAYS MR. HETT
The dust is pretty choky just at present and everybody is inquiring the whereabouts of the sprinklers.
Well, the old water wagons are still anchored in the yard of their owner, August Hett, and no kind words or promises seem to soften the heart of the man who has wet down the streets with the Peverly Springs brand and, now and then, a little cool, salt fluid from the Piscataqua River.
Mr. Hett has said "No," with a big N and he means just what he said.
He cannot see that $900 on the old bills coming his way. Consequently, the people who are willing to pay are biting the dust, which has been as thick as the snow after any storm for the past forty years.
August has large signs building which will read "For sale" and that will be as far as he will go with the water wagons this season.
BUSY MEETING
Will Be That of the City Fathers
Next Wednesday
The city fathers are having a rest as far as meetings are concerned and will not get together for a regular business session until Wednesday, May 23.
The meeting on that date promises to be a lively one, as considerable business awaits the action of the councilmen, including the election of a water commissioner and a keeper of the bathhouse.
NOTICE
This is to notify all concerned that I, George E. Fisher, give my son, Ora F. Fisher, his time; that I shall claim none of his wages and shall pay no bills of his contracting on or after this date.
